KATY FREIGHT RATE SCHEDULE FILED

CORPORATION BOARD AT GUTHRIE RECEIVES OFFICIAL COPY.

Seems as Though Kansas City Has Withdrawn the Boycott on Katy.

Bulletin: The resolution adopted ten days ago by the Kansas City Shippers, placing an embargo on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway was rescinded yesterday. The reason given for the action was that it was feared the agitation might help other roads to force the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road to withdraw the 95 per cent rate from Galveston to Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway company today filed with the Oklahoma corporation commission an official copy of the new rate of 85 cents per 100 pounds from Galveston and Texas City, Tex., to all points in Oklahoma on the Katy system. The rate applies to dry goods and notions. One hundred and sixty-one Oklahoma towns will be benefited by the new rate. The new rate is a reduction of 45 cents per 100 pounds from the old rate of $1.30 from the Texas seaboard. It applies to straight or mixed carloads, minimum weight 20,000 pounds.

The new rate sheet proves conclusively the good faith of the Katy in its desire to give Oklahoma reasonable rates from the Texas seaboard, and utterly destroys the contention that only a few wholesalers in Oklahoma City will benefit. Every town and every merchant on the Katy railroad in Oklahoma who can buy a carload of dry goods and notions benefits by having his freight bill cut one-third.

CANNOT REACH AN AGREEMENT IN MISSOURI

RAILROADS WILL PROBABLY RESUME THREE CENT FARE RATE IN APRIL.

Legislature May Retaliate and Pass Bill Requiring Mileage Books at Two Cent Rate.

Jefferson City, Mo., Mar. 26.—That there has been practically a failure of all rate negotiations between the state and the railroad officials here is apparent today, after another fruitless conference and discussion by the senate to interfere.

It is considered probable that the roads will put a 3-cent fare into effect early next month, and that the legislature will retaliate by passing a bill requiring the sale of mileage books at the rate of two cents per mile and giving the state railroad commission power to fix the passenger rates.

Attorney General Majors is endeavoring to have the two-cent fare kept in force, pending an appeal by the state to the United States supreme court.

"New Jerusalem" Plan.

Guthrie, Ok., March 26.—Senator Campbell Russell is here for Warner and announces that the "New Jerusalem" petitions for the initiated bill he proposes for locating the state capital will be ready by May 1. He proposes to initiate the Senate bill after remodeling, and will make the minimum amount of land required for sites nine sections. Senator Russell's bill was defeated in the house of the last legislature. He exhibited envelopes today upon which he had printed the legends: "Sixty-eight counties gave a majority in favor of 'New Jerusalem' total majority 42,044. Was 'Let the people rule,' a cheap campaign joke; or did you mean it? It is no joke with the people—we will rule. Watch us."

Governor Issues Proclamation.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—Governor Haskell today issued his proclamation for a special election April 27 in the Lexington-Purcell bridge district. Five trustees will be elected one from each township in the bridge district and one at large. The trustees will then call a special election for the purpose of voting bonds for a bridge across the Canadian river. Senator Wynne was author of the bill under which the district was created.

NEGROES IN ARMS AT HICKORY GROUND

WILL ATTEMPT TO AVENGE THE DEATH OF COMRADES KILLED THURSDAY.

Trouble Is Expected and No One Will Be Surprised if Another Battle Ensues

Henryetta, Okla., March 26.—Officers were notified this evening by long distance message from Weleetka and Bowie that a band of perhaps 20 negroes, heavily armed, were seen this afternoon on their way to Hickory ground where it is believed they will retrench themselves and avenge the alleged death of several of their comrades who are reported to have lost their lives in the battle Thursday morning.

As a result, the old time citizens here are well aroused tonight and are preparing to join a posse early tomorrow morning to proceed to Hickory ground and stamp out any possible outbreak before it has an opportunity to grow to any great proportions.

The feeling among the Snake Indians and negroes in this section is known to be deeply rooted. The officers and citizens who will form the posse decided it was much better to wait until tomorrow morning, thereby taking no chance of being waylaid by the negroes and Indians during the night.

Trouble is expected and no surprise will be experienced in Henryetta tomorrow if reports come back that a pitched battle has resulted in the death of several more negroes.

The officers still remain reticent about the battle Thursday and none of them will go on record as to the actual number killed. Deputy Sheriff Joe Ferguson is the only one that has made an open statement and he says that several negroes were killed but were buried perhaps before anyone went to the scene. The officers have returned from Eufaula where they went with the 40 negro prisoners to place them in jail awaiting an investigation. They will be given preliminary hearings probably tomorrow. County Attorney Reubelt will prosecute the negroes.

Governor Haskell announced over the long distance telephone tonight that he had received no call for assistance from the citizens of Henryetta, Okmulgee county, but stated that he awaited anxiously all details concerning the trouble between the whites and the negroes near Hickory ground.

WILL PROSECUTE FORTY-ONE.

County Attorney of McIntosh County Will Investigate Battle Between Officers and Negroes.

Eufaula, Okla., March 26.—County Prosecutor Reubelt, of McIntosh county, left here Friday afternoon for Hickory ground, the scene of the all-night battle between a posse of white officers and farmers and 500 Creek negroes and Indians Wednesday night, in which a number of negroes were killed, one white man seriously wounded and several blacks shot. The attorney will investigate the origin of the trouble which had its climax in the fight. The prosecution probably will be made on the ground of resistance to an officer.

The preliminaries of the forty-one prisoners will be held on Attorney Reubelt's return Saturday.

The prisoners started from Henryetta late Thursday afternoon, arrived here at 9 o'clock in charge of a small bunch of deputy sheriffs. They were taken directly to the county jail. There was no excitement.

Among the prisoners is one white man, a preacher. He is accused by the possmen of having taken sides with the negroes. He refuses to talk. Thirty-five of the prisoners are Creek negroes and five are Creek Indians.

None of the prisoners are seriously wounded. A few bear scratches. They are without exception apparently thoroughly cowed.

Mrs. Shanafelt, Misses McGee, Cullins and Ingram and Mitchell Katz went to Stonewall this morning where they will give a recital this evening.

W. C. T. U. MAKES MOVE FOR WATER FOUNTAIN

LADIES UNDERTAKE MOST LAUDIBLE ENTERPRISE AND SHOULD BE ASSISTED.

Make Proposition to City Council for Assistance—Committee Appointed to Consider Proposition.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have on foot a movement to establish on Main street, or at some convenient place in the city, a water fountain so arranged as to be sufficient for all general purposes, such as drinking, watering stock, etc. This is a matter of more importance than appears on first thought, and whatever methods the ladies adopt to secure the necessary funds for this purpose should be patronized by every citizen who has pride in making the city beautiful and attractive.

The estimated cost of the project will be about $200.00, and the ladies have asked the city council to assist them to the extent of raising half the amount. A committee of the council has been appointed to confer with the ladies regarding the matter, but whether the council can see its way clear to comply with their requests or not is not yet known. Whatever may be the circumstances, however, let everybody encourage the project and devise means whereby the object may be accomplished.

FRIDAY NOT GOOD DAY.

If Remaining Bills Become Law They Must Be Signed by Midnight Tonight.

Guthrie, Ok., March 26.—Friday is not a propitious day in the eyes of Gov. Haskell when it comes to approving bills. There are between fifty and sixty remaining of the lot left by the legislature that will have to be signed by midnight tomorrow if they become laws, Saturday being the last day allowed for executive consideration of legislative acts. When asked late in the day if the work would be taken up the governor said: "No, this is Friday."

Among the remaining measures are a number creating new institutions, the general election law and a large number of appropriations, including the general appropriation measure. The only bill approved today was that by Mr. Maxey of Shawnee for bonding school districts. Representative Durant was here looking after it, for the reason the town of Durant has purchased the Presbyterian College building there for high school purposes and will float $20,000 of bonds in payment.

KATY AGENT AT DURANT.

Merchants Use Labels Showing That Goods Must Be Shipped Over Katy.

Durant, Okla., March 26.—Traveling Freight Agent Johnson of the M. K. & T. Railroad has been in Durant for the past two days working in the interests of his company in an effort to offset the Kansas City dealers' boycott.

Following a former visit of Johnson several of the Durant merchants, who had placed orders with Kansas City houses wired instructions that the shipments must be sent via the Katy. Gunned labels bearing the instructions "This shipment must be shipped via the M. K. & T. railroad, and if routed otherwise will be rejected" have been furnished the local dealers and will be attached to all orders sent to Kansas City houses until the boycott is declared off.

Must Buy Railroad Tickets.

Guthrie, Mar. 26.—Under an order issued by the state corporation commission yesterday railroad companies are authorized to charge excess fares from passengers who neglect to purchase tickets. The excess charges range from ten cents for all fares under fifty cents to fifty cents on all over a dollar and fifty cents.

Notice Ladies.

There will be a called meeting at the 25,000 Club rooms at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, of the XXth Century, Sorosis and City Federation and all the women in Ada who will assist in making the banquet a week from tonight a success.

Entered as Second Class matter, March 26, 1904, at the Postoffice at Ada, Oklahoma, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

JIM BOLEN PARDONED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Guthrie, Mar. 20.—Otis B. Weaver, Editor News, Ada, Okla. Friend Weaver: Answering your communication just received, I regret that so much discussion has grown out of the question of who is entitled to the credit that may be given by the people of Ada and vicinity for securing the passage through the legislature of the Ada Normal school bill.

I trust that your people will understand that I have not the slightest objection to any expression of thanks or appreciation they may see fit to give Judge R. L. Williams; that is wholly a matter for their own consideration, and rest assured I shall feel no personal interest in that phase of the matter—certainly none of regret.

I do feel, however, as an impartial and disinterested observer, that there appeared to be a lack of appreciation of your own members of the House and Senate, knowing as I do that who ever else may be entitled to the thanks of your people, I as one who had the best possible opportunity to know the facts, knew that the Ada normal bill was considered beyond the possibility of success until within a few days of the close of the session, when Senator Roddie succeeded in getting the question revived and a bill passed through the senate, and in the house your two efficient members fought the battle with success, which I assure you was no easy matter. There were doubtless many people aided your senator and representatives, but it was chiefly with their fellow members of the house and senate, as it was with me, a feeling that the large amount of excellent work they have all three aided in accomplishing, entitled them to liberal consideration.

I know that I at least sympathized with Messrs. Roddie, Ratliff and Huddleston in their ambition for the interest of your city from the realization that no three men in the legislature have better represented their constituents or contributed more to the good work of the legislature by industry, honesty, and efficiency than they have, and so far as I am concerned, it is simply out of a feeling that justice should be done them that I ever mentioned the matter at all.

I also beg to assure you, and through you the people of Ada, that nothing that has been said in this recent discussion would influence my action against the bill when I come to consider it. You appreciate the immense volume of work that the consideration of over one hundred bills entails, and I have had to classify these bills and take them up in the order of their importance. Public building bills will likely be taken up about Thursday of next week, and considered on their merits solely.

Personally, you know I am very friendly to you and the other good people of Ada, and shall be sorry indeed if I should disappoint you in any respect. Sincerely yours,

C. N. HASKEILL, Governor.

REGARDING LIQUOR ADS.

Several Oklahoma newspapers are parading their virtues just now for the reason that they refuse to carry liquor advertising in their columns. The Tulsa World gets in the limelight through the current issue of the American Issue for the simple statement that it has cancelled all its whiskey advertising in view of its regard for morality, law enforcement, etc., while the Durant News howls long and loud because other papers carry this class of business while the Durant paper fears to do so.

For the benefit of those papers which view this question from a strictly legal standpoint, and which have no moral or conscientious scruples in regard to the matter, we print herewith Sec. 1, Article III, of the laws of Oklahoma pertaining to this question:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, individual or corporate, to manufacture, sell, barter, give away, or otherwise furnish, except as in this act provided, any spirituous, vinous, fermented or malt liquors, or any imitation thereof, or substitute therefor, * * * or to distribute, publish or display any advertisement, sign or notice where any such liquor may be manufactured, bartered, sold, given away, or otherwise furnished. * * *

The Ada News could fill its columns with liquor advertising if it cared to do so, and there is no surer money for service rendered, and it might escape the penalty of the law as many papers do, but it does not care to aid and abet in the crime of bootlegging, which is not only a felony under the laws of Oklahoma, but is a crime against the dignity and morality of our citizenship.

The News wants advertising, and must have it to exist, but we want it to come in a straightforward, legitimate way, and we believe the business people of Ada appreciate this position to the extent that they will give this paper the advertising patronage that it merits and deserves.

OKLAHOMANS WERE TRUE.

The position of the Oklahoma democrats in congress has been as true as a die on every public question which has arisen in the present and the past congress. They have in every action been consistent with party policy, and hard workers in the interest of their constituents. Their record on party fealty cannot be questioned. This cannot be said of the democrats who bolted the democratic caucus and delivered their votes to the republicans and to Cannonism.

Oklahomans will do well to remember this in the future. On the question of punishing those democrats who bolted the caucus the Oklahoma democrats took a decided and vigorous stand. There was no wavering and they discharged their duty as they saw it and as their constituents had a right to expect. And it is a good sign. The action of the democratic minority in fearlessly denouncing those democrats who deserted and went over to the republicans at a critical time, shows that the democratic party in congress is an organized, fighting virulent body and that it does not propose to stand for treachery in any form. The democratic party is not weakened by the loss of such votes or such men. It is better off with true democrats only than it is with a greater number who are not really democrats. And the democratic caucus in congress has laid down the law to all its members that in the future any democrat who fails to abide the decision of the caucus can expect just what Mr. Fitzgerald and his misguided followers got for bolting the democratic party at a time when their loyalty meant victory.

Again, let it be said that Oklahoma has no democrats of the Fitzgerald kind. They were not led into green fields by fair promises nor tempted by rich rewards, and reward was to be had for the asking during the first days of this congress.—Ardmoreite.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Furman have been the honor guests during the week at six o'clock dinners given by Mrs. S. M. Torbett, Mrs. Will Neathery and Mrs. Tom Hope.

Farewell Party.

The members of the 42 Club were entertained Friday evening by Mrs. C. A. Galbraith, it being a farewell 42 party in honor of Judge Henry M. Furman and wife.

With Henry Marshall.

A number of the boys and girls had a merry, good time Monday evening with Henry Marshall Furman. Corinne Kice won the first prize at 42 and Harman Eley second. Ice cream and cake were served. The boys and girls will regret Henry Marshall's departure from their circle.

The 500 Club.

Mrs. Adam Beck entertained the Five Hundred club Thursday afternoon. Four tables of players participated in the game. Dainty refreshments closed a very pleasant meeting. Those present besides the club members were: Mrs. R. F. King, Mrs. S. M. Torbett, Mrs. H. Blinn, Mrs. Hart, Mrs. H. M. Furman and Mrs. T. J. Kuncie.

Surprise Party.

The young people of Ada gave a surprise party to Miss Alpha Sledge last evening. They spent a most enjoyable evening playing 42 and other games. Those present were: Misses Fannie J. Allen, Mattie Currie, Alma Ingram, Annie May and Eula Clare Sims, Minnie Lue Tinnent and Ruth Sowers, Messrs. Dr. Saffarans, Jack Allen, Phil Thompson, Sidney and Mitchell Katz and Charlie Chaucney.

Ada's Young Society.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sweatt entertained several of Ada's young people Thursday evening. Forty-two was the leading game there being four tables. A delicious one course luncheon was served to the following: Misses Fannie J. Allen, Ruth Sowers, Mattie Currie, Eula Clare Sims, Belle Brents, Alpha Sledge and Alma Ingram and Messrs. Gilbert Reed, Philip Thompson, Jack Allen, Dr. Saffarans, Presonal Sugg, Sidney and Mitchell Katz.

In Honor of Miss Thompson.

A most enjoyable occasion with the members of the young ladies Saturday afternoon Club, was when Miss Estelle Torbett and Miss McGee entertained at Miss Torbett's home. Miss Nena Thompson was the honor guest.

A delightful two course luncheon was served and a pleasant afternoon was spent.

Announcement was made at the party of the marriage of Miss Nena Thompson to Mr. Joseph Napier of Vernon, Tex., in April.

A Forty-Two Party.

Friday afternoon Mrs. I. Harris was hostess to the following ladies, Mesdames King, Broadfoot, Levine, Tobias, Harris, Munger, Stone, Winn, Chaucney, Mays, Frierson and Ramsey, at her pretty home on 13th and Broadway.

The hours were pleasantly spent in playing 42, after which a delicious two course luncheon was served, the salad being served in dainty little

AN ESCAPE VIA THE GRAVE

By GEORGE T. PARDY

Did Justice Go Wrong in the Case of Luke Phipps?

Tale of a Long Search, the Disappearance of a Criminal and the Hanging of Man by Essex County Authorities—An Achievement of That Master Sleuth, John Wilson Murray.

On March, 1884, a man by the name of Luke Phipps was the proprietor of a billiard room in Detroit, Mich. Phipps was about 34 years of age, of fair complexion, with brown hair and a sandy mustache. His family consisted of his wife and two children, a boy and a girl. Mrs. Phipps was a pretty little woman, apparently very fond of her husband.

But fate decreed that the serpent of jealousy should creep into this Eden of domestic bliss. Mrs. Phipps, without the knowledge of her husband, had been in the habit of making secret trips across the river to Windsor, and it chanced that Luke Phipps received information of this fact. Passionately devoted to his wife, this discovery filled him with madness. He watched her carefully and shadowed her movements. One fateful night she left her home and boarded the ferry boat for Windsor. Close on her heels followed the infuriated husband, armed, and under the influence of strong liquor in which he had been indulging freely since he had been informed of his wife's supposed unfaithfulness.

Not until the boat was well out in the river and approaching the Canadian shore did Phipps reveal himself to the woman. Angry words passed between them, the husband accusing the wife of infidelity. Mrs. Phipps replied harshly and the words had scarcely left her lips when the man drew a revolver and fired point blank at her. The bullet sped true to the mark and Mrs. Phipps fell to the deck dead. The murder was witnessed by a score of passengers and Phipps was instantly seized. He made no resistance but meekly gave up the weapon with which the deed was committed, and when the boat landed at Windsor was taken in charge by the Canadian authorities. He was taken at once to Sandwich jail, three miles from Windsor, and committed to trial.

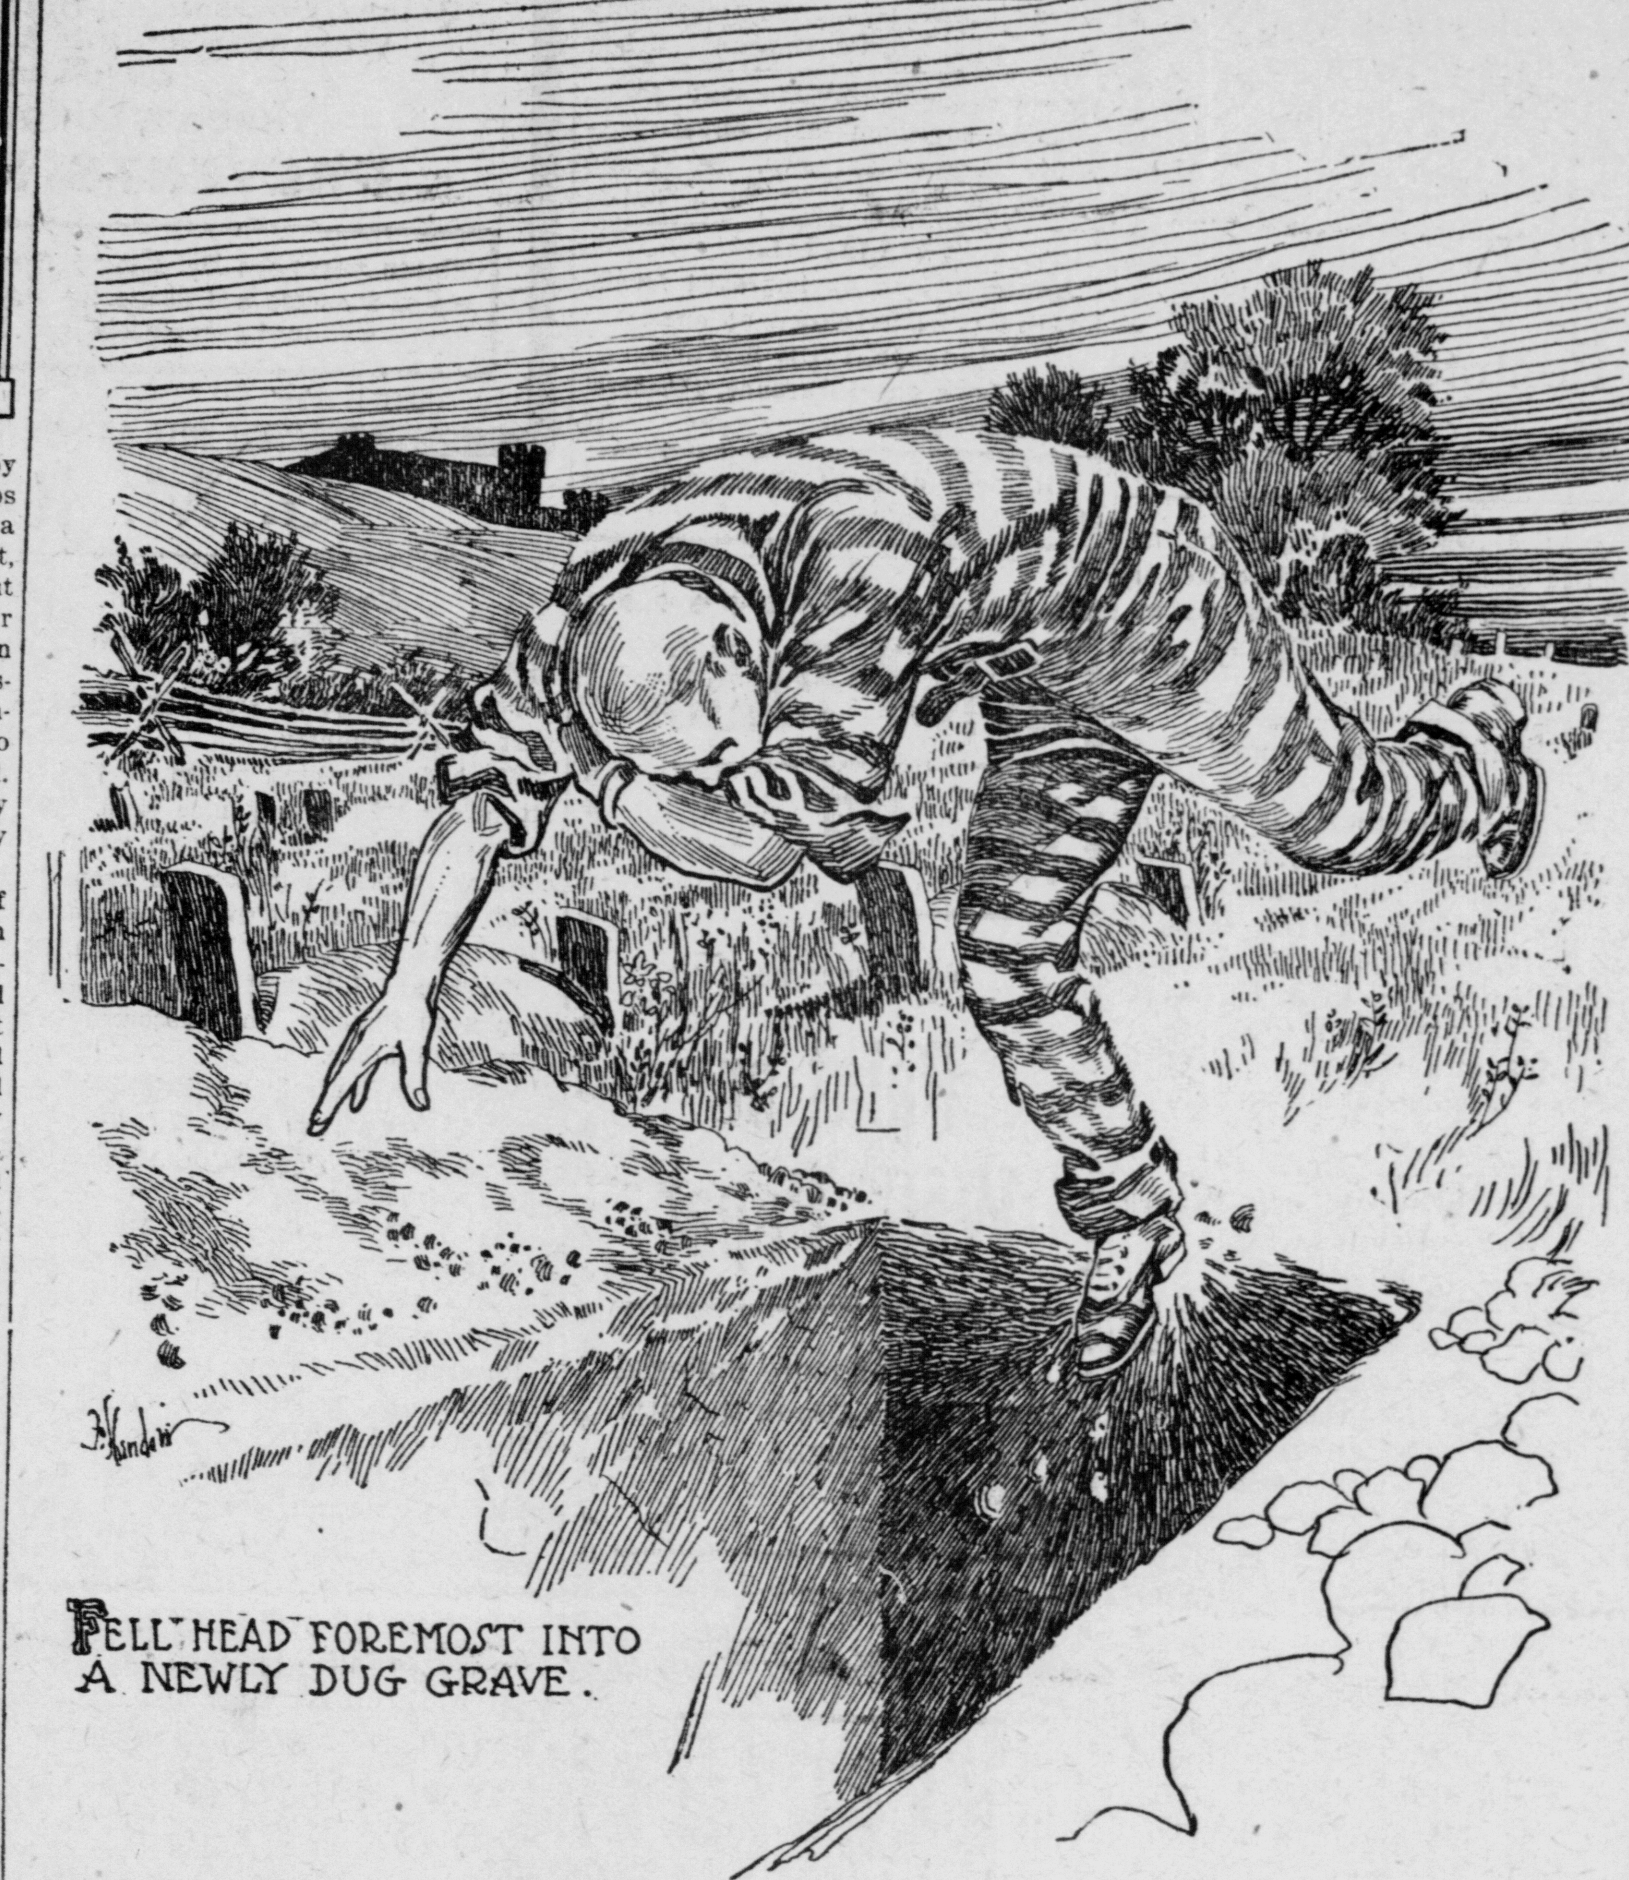

Into this ill-omened place of confinement came Phipps sobered by the realization of the awful tragedy of which he had been the author. The future looked black indeed, for Canadian justice frowns grimly upon the destroyer of human life no matter what her or his provocation may have been, and the gloomy shadow of the gallows loomed threateningly before him. Among the inmates of Sandwich jail was one "Bucky" Greenfield, a professional thief, who like Phipps was awaiting trial, but on a far less serious charge. To this man Phipps was assigned as cell-mate, and glad to find someone in whom he could confide, the wife-slayer told him the story.

As a result of this conference a mysterious female shortly afterwards paid a visit to Greenfield and for ten days following her call Bucky kept close in his cell. During this interval Luke Phipps became seized with a mania for music. He whistled and sang continually in a loud voice for hours at a time. None of the warders offered any objection. Life in Sandwich jail was a monotonous existence at the best, and if a prisoner found comfort in the sound if his own voice they saw no particular reason for silencing him.

The truth of the matter was that Phipps had resorted to the performance of these nocturnal concerts for the purpose of stifling the sounds of Greenfield's labors in the cell.

At last the persistent gnawing of the file conquered the stubborn resistance of the steel bars. They were cut through and the way of escape lay open before the prisoners. In the dead of night the two men slipped out into the darkness. Greenfield got through the narrow opening with little difficulty, but Phipps when half way through stuck fast. His comrade tarried for a few moments making desperate efforts to extricate him, but Phipps remained immovable, as though gripped in a vice. Self preservation being the first law of nature, Bucky Greenfield resolved to obey its dictates, and seized with sudden panic fled swiftly into the night.

Despair seized the heart of Phipps in its icy clutch when his comrade deserted him. A few seconds passed, and he still lay in the narrow opening, panting from his exertions. Then a wild fury filled his veins. He struggled savagely, desperately, and finally tore himself loose with a wrench so powerful that the momentum hurled him over the wall, and he fell heavily to the ground below. There he lay for some time, severely bruised and only half conscious. He was aroused by hearing voices in the jail, and staggering to his feet dragged himself away in search of a hiding place.

He came to a graveyard, and as he crawled along in the darkness, fell head foremost into a newly dug grave. Silent he lay without moving, with fast-closed eyes and rigid body. He heard a creaking and bumping and faintly, as though far away, he heard the harsh rattle of earth falling on the casket. Yet no weight seemed to press upon him, but this did not surprise him, for he was long past the stage of astonishment. It was the end, and nothing mattered now. He heard the rumble of wheels as the carriages departed and the footsteps of the mourners died away.

His awakening came suddenly, accompanied by a cold thrill of horror, as his eyes opened upon the utter darkness. He tried to move, but his entire frame seemed to be paralyzed. With a rush of recollection there crossed his mind the memory of the burial, the prayer and singing. He moved his head feebly and through the hay caught sight of the twinkling stars. Slowly and with great pain he managed to rise to a sitting posture. Where was the coffin, where the six feet of earth underneath which it lay? He staggered to his feet and saw that the grave he occupied was empty. His brain whirled madly in a maze of torturing conjectures. What did it all mean? He tried to clamber out, but fell back exhausted. He lay back on the hay, rested and tried again. It was the work of an hour for him to drag his feeble limbs over the edge of the pit, but at last he succeeded. Then the mystery was solved. Close beside the open grave from which he had emerged a new-made mound stood darkly in the moonlight. The burial had indeed taken place, but in the grave adjoining that in which he lay.

The escaped murderer stood up and laughed hysterically as he looked around and saw the distant outlines of Sandwich jail looming black and gigantic in the moonlight. Rallying his failing strength he staggered away from the grave that had been his place of refuge. On the new-made mound stood a vase of flowers, and bending down weakly, he plucked one and tossed it into the empty grave.

Then painfully he turned and crept

out of the cemetery, across the road, through the fields, traveling like an injured dog, limping on all fours.

His progress was very slow. His destination was the river, which he reached an hour after midnight, and where he found an old boat, half full of water. He discovered a piece of board, crawled into the boat, shoved off and began to paddle. When dawn was breaking he reached the American shore, below Detroit, nine miles down stream, wet to the skin, wounded, blood-stained and faint. But he knew the country round about and made his way into the city to the home of a friend, knocked and was taken in, clothed and fed. When his wounds were healed and his strength returned, he left Detroit resolved to enter upon a new life.

But the Canadian authorities were not disposed to tamely relinquish the possession of a prisoner who had broken their laws and set them at defiance. Orders were issued to capture Phipps, wherever he might be, and the task of hunting him down was assigned to Detective John Wilson Murray.

He sent out a description of Phipps to police headquarters all over the continent. The fugitive was a billiard room keeper and Murray calculated that it would be simply a question of time until his money gave out and he would be obliged to look for a job in a billiard room. Every man to his trade is a maxim that also holds good in the case of a fugitive from justice, and the detective's surmise proved correct. Phipps was located in Pullman, Ill., where he had obtained a position in a billiard room. Murray prepared extradition papers, went to Illinois and took Phipps from Pullman to Chicago.

In the latter city the fugitive employed Jesse Ball, an able lawyer, and made a hard fight against extradition. His counsel endeavored to show that the shooting was done in American waters, and there is no hanging in Michigan. If the crime had been committed in American waters, Phipps would have been tried in Michigan, and if convicted, he would not have been hanged. Murray proved by the captain of the boat and a number of its passengers that the shooting was done in Canada waters, on the Canada side of the river. The legal fight lasted a couple of days, both sides calling witnesses, and Phipps lost. An appeal was taken and a writ of habeas corpus issued, but the proceeding was dismissed and Murray and his prisoner started for Canada.

At Ann Arbor two newspaper men, after going through the car, stopped in front of Phipps and asked him in a whisper as they pointed towards a well-known Detroit minister, who was slumbering in a nearby seat, "Is that Phipps, the murderer?"

Phipps merely smiled in reply, but it was evident that the title of murderer used in conjunction with his name made him flinch considerably, and Murray was about to explain the situation to the reporters when the train started and the two seekers for information left the car hurriedly. The news of Phipps' coming had gone before him and when the train reached Detroit there were nearly two hundred of his former friends waiting at the station to see him. The reception they gave the prisoner testified strongly to the high tide of popularity in his home town and Murray felt still more favorably inclined toward the man whom duty compelled him to hand over to the grim mercies of Canadian law.

"I'll see you fellows at the Michigan exchange," called out Phipps to his friends as he followed Murray into a cab that Chief Bains of Windsor had waiting for them. "I'd like to take a farewell drink there," added the prisoner to Murray, and the latter nodded assent and ordered the cabman to drive to the barroom in question. Phipps' friends gathered there in full force and crowded around him, shaking hands and giving vent to loud expressions of sympathy. Finally Murray delivered himself of a short speech to the crowd that was trenchant and very much to the point.

"It's all very well to be sorry, boys," said the detective bluntly, "but Phipps needs something more than that. What he wants is money for his defense and I'm ready to start a collection right now." Murray backed up his statement by making a handsome donation and the crowd, growing enthusiastic over the idea, followed suit, with the result that a comfortably large sum was soon subscribed and given to the prisoner. That done Murray asked him if there was any other place in Detroit he wanted to visit before crossing the river.

"I'd like to drive past my old home on Jefferson street," said the prisoner, wistfully.

Many times in after life the detective was glad that he acceded to this last request of his unfortunate prisoner. The cab drove along Jefferson street and Phipps gazed with soul-hungry eyes upon the house wherein he had once lived so happily. He watched it out of the cab window and then from the window in the back until it had faded from his view.

"I'm ready to go now," he said, and Murray took him across the river and back to the jail from which he had made such a daring escape.

There were several circumstances that weighed heavily against Phipps' chances of escaping death on the gallows. In the first place his jail-breaking exploit in company with Bucky Greenfield was against him. Greenfield got away safely to Mexico, and as there was no extradition treaty between Canada and the former country at that time covering his offense, he was never brought back. Doubtless Greenfield meant well by his cell-mate when he planned their escape, but it would have been far better for Phipps had he not broken jail. Then there was the episode of Billy Callaghan in Sandwich jail which had much to do with influencing public opinion in the County of Essex at the time of the Phipps trial.

Callaghan belonged to Detroit. He came of a respectable family, and in his younger days was a dry goods clerk, but became a professional burglar and desperate crook. He and a burglar named Kennedy were being held in Sandwich jail and on March 16 they made a dash for liberty. George O'Callaghan Leech, the old governor of the jail, tried to intercept the escaping prisoners, and Billy Callaghan drew a revolver which had been smuggled into his cell, shot and killed the governor and escaped with Kennedy. Callaghan got safely away out of the country but Kennedy was caught and sent to Kingston penitentiary for seven years.

While there Kennedy became pals with another convict named Blinky Morgan who was serving five years for manslaughter. Shortly after becoming acquainted the pair broke out of Kingston penitentiary. Morgan was traced to Reno, Ohio, by a detective named Hoolihan and in the fight that occurred when they met the officer was killed. Morgan escaped after slaying Hoolihan but was run down in Alpena, Mich., where he shot the sheriff and wounded another man. He was captured, taken to Cleveland and hanged. Kennedy got away.

In the meantime Callaghan, after killing Gov. Leech of Sandwich jail, had disappeared completely. Murray sent out circulars offering a reward for his arrest and finally received a telegram from the police of Hannibal, Mo., which read:

"Come at once. Callaghan in jail, acknowledges identity."

Murray wired back: "Will come, but I do not believe it is Callaghan. He would not acknowledge identity."

He prepared the necessary extradition papers and went to Hannibal, taking with him Turnkey Smith of Sandwich jail, who knew Callaghan well. Arriving at their destination they were informed by the police that two crooks, known as Joe Rice and John Carr, had burglarized Banker Patterson's house in Barry, Ill., making him get out of bed, open up his safe and turn over the contents, besides taking his gold-mounted revolver. They had been caught in Hannibal and Rice had the stolen revolver. On the way to the jail Rice whispered with Carr, and in the jail he had said to a fellow prisoner:

"I wonder if these cops know who I am? They offer a reward for me in Canada." The prisoner reported the conversation, Rice was questioned and confessed he was Bill Callaghan. Then Murray was sent for.

The detective was shown to the cell occupied by the supposed Callaghan. It was a gloomy hole, but even in the semi-darkness a single glance at the inmate convinced Murray that he was not the murderer of the Sandwich jail governor. Turnkey Smith also shared his opinion. The prisoner was ordered to step into a better light and Murray looked at him closely.

"No," said the detective, "he is not Callaghan. This is Jim Leavitt of New York. Jim, I have seen you at Billy Brown's in Bleeker street, and at 'The Allen's.'"

The prisoner laughed, and admitted that Murray's statement was correct. Murray returned to Toronto without Callaghan whom he next heard of in Mexico. It was later reported that Callaghan was drowned in South America, but however that may have been, he was never captured.

Between Greenfield and Callaghan the fate of Luke Phipps was sealed. The murder of Gov. O'Callaghan Leech enraged the people of Essex county, and when Phipps, who had escaped from the same jail, came up for trial some months after the Leech killing, public opinion was against him. He was found guilty of murder, hanged in Sandwich jail in November, 1884, and buried near the grave where he had once sought refuge and lay hidden from the eyes of his hunters for the space of a night and a day.

England's Dog Law
Some misguided person returning from a continental holiday has wondered why dogs are not used in England as beasts of burden. The reason why is nothing less simple than a statute. As long ago as 1839 an act was passed making it a punishable offense for any person within the metropolitan area to "use any dog for the purpose of drawing or helping to draw any cart, carriage, truck or barrow." Fifteen years later, in 1854, an act, passed in "the more effectual prevention of cruelty to animals," extended the prohibition to all parts of the kingdom.—London Globe.

California's Trees Very Old
The great trees of California, it has been said, began life before the earliest dawn of Chinese history, and at the time of the deluge were older than the art of printing from type is today. Prof. Charles E. Bessey, however, contends that even 2,000 years is a great over-estimate, actual ring count of a tree 25 feet in diameter having indicated only 1,147 years.

Make 'Em Grow by Electricity
The electrification of plants is the new gardener's recipe for making things grow like Jack's beanstalk. In 1904 500 square yards of kitchen garden were electrified by the overhead discharge system, and, compared with controls, gooseberries yielded 17 per cent. increase; strawberries, 36-80 per cent. increase; tomatoes none. In the other plot carrots yielded 50 per cent. increase and beets 30 per cent., with an increase of one per cent. sugar content under similar treatment.

In 1906 20 acres of wheat were treated with discharge wires at a considerable height and high tension current; the increase over control was 39 per cent. The electrified wheat gave a better quality of flour.

KATY FREIGHT RATE SCHEDULE FILED

CORPORATION BOARD AT GUTHRIE RECEIVES OFFICIAL COPY.

Seems as Though Kansas City Has Withdrawn the Boycott on Katy.

Butler, Okla., March 26.—The resolution adopted ten days ago by the Kansas City Shippers, placing an embargo on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway was rescinded yesterday. The reason given for the action was that it was feared the agitation might help other roads to force the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road to withdraw the 95 per cent rate from Galveston to Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway company today filed with the Oklahoma corporation commission an official copy of the new rate of 85 cents per 100 pounds from Galveston and Texas City, Tex., to all points in Oklahoma on the Katy system. The rate applies to dry goods and notions. One hundred and sixty-one Oklahoma towns will be benefited by the new rate. The new rate is a reduction of 45 cents per 100 pounds from the old rate of $1.30 from the Texas seaboard. It applies to straight or mixed carloads, minimum weight 20,000 pounds.

The new rate sheet proves conclusively the good faith of the Katy in its desire to give Oklahoma reasonable rates from the Texas seaboard, and utterly destroys the contention that only a few wholesalers in Oklahoma City will benefit. Every town and every merchant on the Katy railroad in Oklahoma who can buy a carload of dry goods and notions benefits by having his freight bill cut one-third.

CANNOT REACH AN AGREEMENT IN MISSOURI

RAILROADS WILL PROBABLY RESUME THREE CENT FARE RATE IN APRIL.

Legislature May Retaliate and Pass Bill Requiring Mileage Books at Two Cent Rate.

Jefferson City, Mo., Mar. 26.—That there has been practically a failure of all rate negotiations between the state and the railroad officials here is apparent today, after another fruitless conference and discussion by the senate to interfere.

It is considered probable that the roads will put a 3-cent fare into effect early next month, and that the legislature will retaliate by passing a bill requiring the sale of mileage books at the rate of two cents per mile and giving the state railroad commission power to fix the passenger rates.

Attorney General Majors is endeavoring to have the two-cent fare kept in force, pending an appeal by the state to the United States supreme court.

"New Jerusalem" Plan.

Guthrie, Ok., March 26.—Senator Campbell Russell is here for Warner and announces that the "New Jerusalem" petition for the initiated bill he proposes for locating the state capital will be ready by May 1. He proposes to initiate the Senate bill after remodeling, and will make the minimum amount of land required for sites nine sections. Senator Russell's bill was defeated in the house of the last legislature. He exhibited envelopes today upon which he had printed the legends: "Sixty-eight counties gave a majority in favor of 'New Jerusalem' total majority 12,641. Was 'Let the people rule?' a cheap campaign joke or did you mean it? It is no joke with the people—we will rule. Watch us."

Governor Issues Proclamation.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—Governor Haskell today issued his proclamation for a special election April 27 in the Lexington-Pocahontas bridge district. Five trustees will be elected one from each township in the bridge district and one at large. The trustees will then call a special election for the purpose of voting bonds for a bridge across the Canadian river. Senator Wayne was author of the bill under which the district was created.

NEGROES IN ARMS AT HICKORY GROUND

WILL ATTEMPT TO AVENGE THE DEATH OF COMRADES KILLED THURSDAY.

Trouble Is Expected and No One Will Be Surprised if Another Battle Ensues.

Henrietta, Okla., March 26.—Officers were notified this evening by long distance message from Weleetka and Bowie that a band of perhaps 20 negroes, heavily armed, were seen this afternoon on their way to Hickory ground where it is believed they will retrench themselves and avenge the alleged death of several of their comrades who are reported to have lost their lives in the battle Thursday morning.

As a result, the old time citizens here are well aroused tonight and are preparing to join a posse early tomorrow morning to proceed to Hickory ground and stamp out any possible outbreak before it has an opportunity to grow to any great proportions.

The feeling among the Snake Indians and negroes in this section is known to be deeply rooted. The officers and citizens who will form the posse decided it was much better to wait until tomorrow morning, thereby taking no chance of being waylaid by the negroes and Indians during the night.

Trouble is expected and no surprise will be experienced in Henrietta tomorrow if reports come back that a pitched battle has resulted in the death of several more negroes.

The officers still remain reticent about the battle Thursday and none of them will go on record as to the actual number killed. Deputy Sheriff Joe Ferguson is the only one that has made an open statement and he says that several negroes were killed but were buried perhaps before anyone went to the scene. The officers have returned from Enfield where they went with the 10 negro prisoners to place them in jail awaiting an investigation. They will be given preliminary hearings probably tomorrow. County Attorney Reubelt will prosecute the negroes.

Governor Haskell announced over the long distance telephone tonight that he had received no call for assistance from the citizens of Henrietta, Oklahoma county, but stated that he awaited anxiously all details concerning the trouble between the whites and the negroes near Hickory ground.

WILL PROSECUTE FORTY-ONE.

County Attorney of McIntosh County Will Investigate Battle Between Officers and Negroes.

Enfield, Okla., March 26.—County Prosecutor Reubelt, of McIntosh county, left here Friday afternoon for Hickory ground, the scene of the all-night battle between a posse of white officers and farmers and 500 Creek negroes and Indians Wednesday night, in which a number of negroes were killed, one white man seriously wounded and several blacks shot. The attorney will investigate the origin of the trouble which had its climax in the fight. The prosecution probably will be made on the ground of resistance to an officer.

The preliminaries of the forty-one prisoners will be held on Attorney Reubelt's return Saturday.

The prisoners started from Henrietta late Thursday afternoon, arrived here at 9 o'clock in charge of a small bunch of deputy sheriffs. They were taken directly to the county jail. There was no excitement.

Among the prisoners is one white man, a preacher. He is accused by the possemen of having taken sides with the negroes. He refuses to talk. Thirty-five of the prisoners are Creek negroes and five are Creek Indians.

None of the prisoners are seriously wounded. A few bear scratches. They are without exception apparently thoroughly cowed.

Mrs. Shanafelt, Misses McGee, Culling and Ingram and Mitchell Katz went to Stonewall this morning where they will give a recital this evening.

W. C. T. U. MAKES MOVE FOR WATER FOUNTAIN

LADIES UNDERTAKE MOST LAUDIBLE ENTERPRISE AND SHOULD BE ASSISTED.

Make Proposition to City Council for Assistance—Committee Appointed to Consider Proposition.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have on foot a movement to establish on Main street, or at some convenient place in the city, a water fountain so arranged as to be sufficient for all general purposes, such as drinking, watering stock, etc. This is a matter of more importance than appears on first thought, and whatever methods the ladies adopt to secure the necessary funds for this purpose should be patronized by every citizen who has pride in making the city beautiful and attractive.

The estimated cost of the project will be about $200.00, and the ladies have asked the city council to assist them to the extent of raising half the amount. A committee of the council has been appointed to confer with the ladies regarding the matter, but whether the council can see its way clear to comply with their requests or not is not yet known. Whatever may be the circumstances, however, let everybody encourage the project and devise means whereby the object may be accomplished.

FRIDAY NOT GOOD DAY.

If Remaining Bills Become Law They Must Be Signed by Midnight Tonight.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—Friday is not a propitious day in the eyes of Gov. Haskell when it comes to approving bills. There are between fifty and sixty remaining of the lot left by the legislature that will have to be signed by midnight tomorrow if they become laws. Saturday being the last day allowed for executive consideration of legislative acts. When asked late in the day if the work would be taken up the governor said, "No, this is Friday."

Among the remaining measures are a number creating new institutions, the general election law and a large number of appropriations, including the general appropriation measure. The only bill approved today was that by Mr. Maxey of Shawnee for bonding school districts. Representative Durant was here looking after it for the reason the town of Durant has purchased the Presbyterian College building there for high school purposes and will float $20,000 of bonds in payment.

KATY AGENT AT DURANT.

Merchants Use Labels Showing That Goods Must Be Shipped Over Katy.

Durant, Okla., March 26.—Traveling Freight Agent Johnson of the M. K. & T. Railroad has been in Durant for the past two days working in the interests of his company in an effort to offset the Kansas City dealers' boycott.

Following a former visit of Johnson several of the Durant merchants, who had placed orders with Kansas City houses wired instructions that the shipments must be sent via the Katy.

Gummed labels bearing the instructions. This shipment must be shipped via the M. K. & T. railroad, and if routed otherwise will be rejected" have been furnished the local dealers and will be attached to all orders sent to Kansas City houses until the boycott is declared off.

Must Buy Railroad Tickets.

Guthrie, Mar. 26.—Under an order issued by the state corporation commission yesterday railroad companies are authorized to charge excess fares from passengers who neglect to purchase tickets. The excess charges range from ten cents for all fares under fifty cents to fifty cents on all over a dollar and fifty cents.

Notice Ladies.

There will be a called meeting at the 25,000 Club rooms at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, of the XXth Century, Sorosis and City Federation and all the women in Ada who will assist in making the banquet a week from tonight a success.

AN ESCAPE VIA THE GRAVE

By GEORGE T. PARDY

Did Justice Go Wrong in the Case of Luke Phipps?

Tale of a Long Search, the Disappearance of a Criminal and the Hanging of Man by Essex County Authorities—An Achievement of That Master Sleuth, John Wilson Murray.

IN March, 1884, a man by the name of Luke Phipps was the proprietor of a billiard room in Detroit, Mich. Phipps was about 34 years of age, of fair complexion, with brown hair and a sandy mustache. His family consisted of his wife and two children, a boy and a girl. Mrs. Phipps was a pretty little woman, apparently very fond of her husband.

But fate decreed that the serpent of jealousy should creep into this Eden of domestic bliss. Mrs. Phipps, without the knowledge of her husband, had been in the habit of making secret trips across the river to Windsor, and it chanced that Luke Phipps received information of this fact. Passionately devoted to his wife, this discovery filled him with madness. He watched her carefully and shadowed her movements. One fateful night she left her home and boarded the ferry boat for Windsor. Close on her heels followed the infuriated husband, armed, and under the influence of strong liquor in which he had been indulging freely since he had been informed of his wife's supposed unfaithfulness.

Not until the boat was well out in the river and approaching the Canadian shore did Phipps reveal himself to the woman. Angry words passed between them, the husband accusing the wife of infidelity. Mrs. Phipps replied harshly and the words had scarcely left her lips when the man drew a revolver and fired point blank at her. The bullet sped true to the mark and Mrs. Phipps fell to the deck dead. The murder was witnessed by a score of passengers and Phipps was instantly seized. He made no resistance but meekly gave up the weapon with which the deed was committed, and when the boat landed at Windsor was taken in charge by the Canadian authorities. He was taken at once to Sandwich jail, three miles from Windsor, and committed for trial.

Into this ill-omened place of confinement came Phipps sobered by the realization of the awful tragedy of which he had been the author. The future looked black indeed, for Canadian justice frowns grimly upon the destroyer of human life no matter what her or his provocation may have been, and the gloomy shadow of the gallows loomed threateningly before him. Among the inmates of Sandwich jail was one "Bucky" Greenfield, a professional thief, who like Phipps was awaiting trial, but on a far less serious charge. To this man Phipps was assigned as cell-mate, and glad to find someone in whom he could confide, the wife-slayer told him the story.

As a result of this conference a mysterious female shortly afterwards paid a visit to Greenfield and for ten days following her call Bucky kept close in his cell. During this interval Luke Phipps became seized with a mania for music. He whistled and sang continually in a loud voice for hours at a time. None of the warders offered any objection. Life in Sandwich jail was a monotonous existence at the best, and if a prisoner found comfort in the sound of his own voice they saw no particular reason for silencing him.

The truth of the matter was that Phipps had resorted to the performance of these nocturnal concerts for the purpose of stifling the sounds of Greenfield's labors in the cell. At last the persistent gnawing of the steel bars, the stubborn resistance of the steel bars. They were cut through and the way of escape lay open before the prisoners. In the dead of night the two men slipped out into the darkness. Greenfield got through the narrow opening with little difficulty, but Phipps when half way through stuck fast. His comrade tarried for a few moments making desperate efforts to extricate him, but Phipps remained immovable, as though gripped in a vice. Self preservation being the first law of nature, Bucky Greenfield resolved to obey its dictates, and seized with sudden panic fled swiftly into the night.

Despair seized the heart of Phipps in its icy clutch when his comrade deserted him. A few seconds passed, and he still lay in the narrow opening, panting from his exertions. Then a wild fury filled his veins. He struggled savagely, desperately, and finally tore himself loose with a wrench so powerful that the momentum hurled him over the wall, and he fell heavily to the ground below. There he lay for some time, severely bruised and only half conscious. He was aroused by hearing voices in the jail, and staggering to his feet dragged himself away in search of a hiding place.

He came to a graveyard, and as he crawled along in the darkness, fell head foremost into a newly dug grave. Silent he lay without moving, with fast-closed eyes and rigid body. He heard a creaking and bumping and faintly, as though far away, he heard the harsh rattle of earth falling on the casket. Yet no weight seemed to press upon him, but this did not surprise him, for he was long past the stage of astonishment. It was the end, and nothing mattered now. He heard the rumble of wheels as the carriages departed and the footsteps of the mourners died away.

His awakening came suddenly, accompanied by a cold thrill of horror, as his eyes opened upon the utter darkness. He tried to move, but his entire frame seemed to be paralyzed. With a rush of recollection there crossed his mind the memory of the burial, the prayer and singing. He moved his head feebly and through the hay caught sight of the twinkling stars. Slowly and with great pain he managed to rise to a sitting posture. Where was the coffin, where the six feet of earth underneath which it lay? He staggered to his feet and saw that the grave he occupied was empty. His brain whirled madly in a maze of torturing conjectures. What did it all mean? He tried to clamber out, but fell back exhausted. He lay back on the hay, rested and tried again. It was the work of an hour for him to drag his feeble limbs over the edge of the pit, but at last he succeeded. Then the mystery was solved. Close beside the open grave from which he had emerged a new-made mound stood darkly in the moonlight. The burial had indeed taken place, but in the grave adjoining that in which he lay.

The escaped murderer stood up and laughed hysterically as he looked around and saw the distant outlines of Sandwich jail looming black and gigantic in the moonlight. Rallying his failing strength he staggered away from the grave that had been his place of refuge. On the new-made mound stood a vase of flowers, and bending down weakly, he plucked one and tossed it into the empty grave.

Then painfully he turned and crept

out of the cemetery, across the road, through the fields, traveling like an injured dog, limping on all fours.

His progress was very slow. His destination was the river, which he reached an hour after midnight, and where he found an old boat, half full of water. He discovered a piece of board, crawled into the boat, shoved off and began to paddle. When dawn was breaking he reached the American shore, below Detroit, nine miles down stream, wet to the skin, wounded, blood-stained and faint. But he knew the country round about and made his way into the city to the home of a friend, knocked and was taken in, clothed and fed. When his wounds were healed and his strength returned, he left Detroit resolved to enter upon a new life.

But the Canadian authorities were not disposed to tamely relinquish the possession of a prisoner who had broken their laws and set them at defiance. Orders were issued to capture Phipps, wherever he might be, and the task of hunting him down was assigned to Detective John Wilson Murray.

He sent out a description of Phipps to police headquarters all over the continent. The fugitive was a billiard-room keeper and Murray calculated that it would be simply a question of time until his money gave out and he would be obliged to look for a job in a billiard room. Every man to his trade is a maxim that also holds good in the case of a fugitive from justice, and the detective's surmise proved correct. Phipps was located in Pullman, Ill., where he had obtained a position in a billiard room. Murray prepared extradition papers, went to Illinois and took Phipps from Pullman to Chicago.

In the latter city the fugitive employed Jesse Ball, an able lawyer, and made a hard fight against extradition. His counsel endeavored to show that the shooting was done in American waters, and there is no hanging in Michigan. If the crime had been committed in American waters, Phipps would have been tried in Michigan, and if convicted, he would not have been hanged. Murray proved by the captain of the boat and a number of its passengers that the shooting was done in Canada waters, on the Canada side of the river. The legal fight lasted a couple of days, both sides calling witnesses, and Phipps lost. An appeal was taken and a writ of habeas corpus issued, but the proceeding was dismissed and Murray and his prisoner started for Canada.

At Ann Arbor two newspaper men, after going through the car, stopped in front of Phipps and asked him in a whisper as they pointed towards a well-known Detroit minister, who was slumbering in a nearby seat, "Is that Phipps, the murderer?"

Phipps merely smiled in reply, but it was evident that the title of murderer used in conjunction with his name made him flinch considerably, and Murray was about to explain the situation to the reporters when the train started and the two seekers for information left the car hurriedly. The news of Phipps' coming had gone before him and when the train reached Detroit there were nearly two hundred of his former friends waiting at the station to see him. The reception they gave the prisoner testified strongly to the high tide of popularity in his home town and Murray felt still more favorably inclined toward the man whom duty compelled him to hand over to the grim mercies of Canadian law.

"I'll see you fellows at the Michigan exchange," called out Phipps to his friends as he followed Murray into a cab that Chief Bains of Windsor had waiting for them. "I'd like to take a farewell drink there," added the prisoner to Murray, and the latter nodded assent and ordered the cabman to drive to the barroom in question. Phipps' friends gathered there in full force and crowded around him, shaking hands and giving vent to loud expressions of sympathy. Finally Murray delivered himself of a short speech to the crowd that was trenchant and very much to the point.

"It's all very well to be sorry, boys," said the detective bluntly, "but Phipps needs something more than that. What he wants is money for his defense and I'm ready to start a collection right now." Murray backed up his statement by making a handsome donation and the crowd, growing enthusiastic over the idea, followed suit, with the result that a comfortably large sum was soon subscribed and given to the prisoner. That done Murray asked him if there was any other place in Detroit he wanted to visit before crossing the river.

"I'd like to drive past my old home on Jefferson street," said the prisoner, wistfully.

Many times in after life the detective was glad that he acceded to this last request of his unfortunate prisoner. The cab drove along Jefferson street and Phipps gazed with soul-hungry eyes upon the house wherein he had once lived so happily. He watched it out of the cab window and then from the window in the back until it had faded from his view.

"I'm ready to go now," he said, and Murray took him across the river and back to the jail from which he had made such a daring escape.

There were several circumstances that weighed heavily against Phipps' chances of escaping death on the gallows. In the first place his jail-breaking exploit in company with Bucky Greenfield was against him. Greenfield got away safely to Mexico, and as there was no extradition treaty between Canada and the former country at that time covering his offense, he was never brought back. Doubtless Greenfield meant well by his cell-mate when he planned their escape, but it would have been far better for Phipps had he not broken jail. Then there was the episode of Billy Callaghan in Sandwich jail which had much to do with influencing public opinion in the County of Essex at the time of the Phipps trial.

Callaghan belonged to Detroit. He came of a respectable family, and in his younger days was a dry goods clerk, but became a professional burglar and desperate crook. He and a burglar named Kennedy were being held in Sandwich jail and on March 16 they made a dash for liberty. George O'Callaghan Leech, the old governor of the jail, tried to intercept the escaping prisoners, and Billy Callaghan drew a revolver which had been smuggled into his cell, shot and killed the governor and escaped with Kennedy. Callaghan got safely away out of the country but Kennedy was caught and sent to Kingston penitentiary for seven years.

While there Kennedy became pals with another convict named Blinky Morgan who was serving five years for manslaughter. Shortly after becoming acquainted the pair broke out of Kingston penitentiary. Morgan was traced to Reno, Ohio, by a detective named Hoolihan and in the fight that occurred when they met the officer was killed. Morgan escaped after slaying Hoolihan but was run down in Alpena, Mich., where he shot the sheriff and wounded another man. He was captured, taken to Cleveland and hanged. Kennedy got away.

In the meantime Callaghan, after killing Gov. Leech of Sandwich jail, had disappeared completely. Murray sent out circulars offering a reward for his arrest and finally received a telegram from the police of Hannibal, Mo., which read:

"Come at once. Callaghan in jail, acknowledges identity."

Murray wired back: "Will come, but I do not believe it is Callaghan. He would not acknowledge identity."

He prepared the necessary extradition papers and went to Hannibal, taking with him Turnkey Smith of Sandwich jail, who knew Callaghan well. Arriving at their destination they were informed by the police that two crooks, known as Joe Rice and John Carr, had burglarized Banker Patterson's house in Barry, Ill., making him get out of bed, open up his safe and turn over the contents, besides taking his gold-mounted revolver. They had been caught in Hannibal and Rice had the stolen revolver. On the way to the jail Rice whispered with Carr, and in the jail he had said to a fellow prisoner:

"I wonder if these cops know who I am? They offer a reward for me in Canada." The prisoner reported the conversation, Rice was questioned and confessed he was Bill Callaghan. Then Murray was sent for.

The detective was shown to the cell occupied by the supposed Callaghan. It was a gloomy hole, but even in the semi-darkness a single glance at the inmate convinced Murray that he was not the murderer of the Sandwich jail governor. Turnkey Smith also shared his opinion. The prisoner was ordered to step into a better light and Murray looked at him closely.

"No," said the detective, "he is not Callaghan. This is Jim Leavitt of New York. Jim, I have seen you at Billy Brown's in Bleeker street, and at 'The Allen's.'"

The prisoner laughed, and admitted that Murray's statement was correct. Murray returned to Toronto without Callaghan whom he next heard of in Mexico. It was later reported that Callaghan was drowned in South America, but however that may have been, he was never captured.

Between Greenfield and Callaghan the fate of Luke Phipps was sealed. The murder of Gov. O'Callaghan Leech enraged the people of Essex county, and when Phipps, who had escaped from the same jail, came up for trial some months after the Leech killing, public opinion was against him. He was found guilty of murder, hanged in Sandwich jail in November, 1884, and buried near the grave where he had once sought refuge and lay hidden from the eyes of his hunters for the space of a night and a day.

Hard Task for Governor
Cin is still used as a means of change in some parts of the country in Africa, but the U. S. CO., OKLAHOMA discourages it. Owing to the extinction of conservation in these districts the task is difficult.

Handle Many Turkeys
During the time beginning with Thanksgiving day and ending with New Year's day, New York city handles one-twelfth of all the turkeys consumed in the United States.

England's Dog Law
Some misguided person returning from a continental holiday has wondered why dogs are not used in England as beasts of burden. The reason why is nothing less simple than a statute. As long ago as 1839 an act was passed making it a punishable offense for any person within the metropolitan area to "use any dog for the purpose of drawing or helping to draw any cart, carriage, truck or barrow." Fifteen years later, in 1854, an act, passed in "the more effectual prevention of cruelty to animals," extended the prohibition to all parts of the kingdom.—London Globe.

California's Trees Very Old
The great trees of California, it has been said, began life before the earliest dawn of Chinese history, and at the time of the deluge were older than the art of printing from type is today. Prof. Charles E. Bessey, however, contends that even 2,000 years is a great over-estimate, actual ring count of a tree 25 feet in diameter having indicated only 1,147 years.

Make 'Em Grow by Electricity.
The electrification of plants is the new gardener's recipe for making things grow like Jack's beanstalk. In 1904 600 square yards of kitchen garden were electrified by the overhead discharge system, and, compared with controls, gooseberries yielded 17 per cent. increase; strawberries, 36-50 per cent. increase; tomatoes none. In the other plot carrots yielded 50 per cent. increase and beets 30 per cent., with an increase of one per cent sugar content under similar treatment.

In 1906 20 acres of wheat were treated with discharge wires at a considerable height and high tension current; the increase over control was 39 per cent. The electrified wheat gave a better quality of flour.

KATY FREIGHT RATE SCHEDULE FILED

CORPORATION BOARD AT GUTHRIE RECEIVES OFFICIAL COPY.

Seems as Though Kansas City Has Withdrawn the Boycott on Katy.

Bulletin: The resolution adopted ten days ago by the Kansas City Shippers, placing an embargo on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway was rescinded yesterday. The reason given for the action was that it was feared the agitation might hurt other roads to force the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road to withdraw the 95 per cent rate from Galveston to Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway company today filed with the Oklahoma corporation commission an official copy of the new rate of 85 cents per 100 pounds from Galveston and Texas City, Tex., to all points in Oklahoma on the Katy system. The rate applies to dry goods and notions. One hundred and sixty-one Oklahoma towns will be benefited by the new rate. The new rate is a reduction of 45 cents per 100 pounds from the old rate of $1.30 from the Texas seaboard. It applies to straight or mixed carloads, minimum weight 20,000 pounds.

The new rate sheet proves conclusively the good faith of the Katy in its desire to give Oklahoma reasonable rates from the Texas seaboard, and utterly destroys the contention that only a few wholesalers in Oklahoma City will benefit. Every town and every merchant on the Katy railroad in Oklahoma who can buy a carload of dry goods and notions benefits by having his freight bill cut one-third.

CANNOT REACH AN AGREEMENT IN MISSOURI

RAILROADS WILL PROBABLY RESUME THREE CENT FARE RATE IN APRIL.

Legislature May Retaliate and Pass Bill Requiring Mileage Books at Two Cent Rate.

Jefferson City, Mo., Mar. 26.—There has been practically a failure of all rate negotiations between the state and the railroad officials here is apparent today, after another fruitless conference and discussion by the senate to interfere.

It is considered probable that the roads will put a 3-cent fare into effect early next month, and that the legislature will retaliate by passing a bill requiring the sale of mileage books at the rate of two cents per mile and giving the state railroad commission power to fix the passenger rates.

Attorney General Majors is endeavoring to have the two-cent fare kept in force, pending an appeal by the state to the United States supreme court.

"New Jerusalem" Plan.

Guthrie, Ok., March 26.—Senator Campbell Russell is here for Warner and announces that the "New Jerusalem" petitioners for the initiated bill he proposes for locating the state capital will be ready by May 1. He proposes to initiate the "Senate bill" after remodeling, and will make the minimum amount of land required for sites nine sections. Senator Russell's bill was defeated in the house of the last legislature. He exhibited envelopes today upon which he had printed the legends: "Sixty-eight counties gave a majority in favor of 'New Jerusalem' total majority 12,041. Was 'let the people rule' a cheap campaign joke or did you mean it? It is no joke with the people—we will rule. Watch us."

Governor Issues Proclamation.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—Governor Haskell today issued his proclamation for a special election April 27 in the Lexington-Purcell bridge district. Five trustees will be elected one from each township in the bridge district and one at large. The trustees will then call a special election for the purpose of voting bonds for a bridge across the Canadian river. Senator Wayne was author of the bill under which the district was created.

NEGROES IN ARMS AT HICKORY GROUND

WILL ATTEMPT TO AVENGE THE DEATH OF COMRADES KILLED THURSDAY.

Trouble Is Expected and No One Will Be Surprised If Another Battle Ensnues

Henryetta, Okla., March 26.—Officers were notified this evening by long distance message from Waleeta and Bowie that a band of perhaps 20 negroes, heavily armed, were seen this afternoon on their way to Hickory ground where it is believed they will retrench themselves and avenge the alleged death of several of their comrades who are reported to have lost their lives in the battle Thursday morning.

As a result, the old time citizens here are well aroused tonight and are preparing to join a posse early tomorrow morning to proceed to Hickory ground and stamp out any possible outbreak before it has an opportunity to grow to any great proportions.

The feeling among the Snake Indians and negroes in this section is known to be deeply rooted. The officers and citizens who will form the posse decided it was much better to wait until tomorrow morning, thereby taking no chance of being waylaid by the negroes and Indians during the night.

Trouble is expected and no surprise will be experienced in Henryetta tomorrow if reports come back that a pitched battle has resulted in the death of several more negroes.

The officers still remain reticent about the battle Thursday and none of them will go on record as to the actual number killed. Deputy Sheriff Joe Ferguson is the only one that has made an open statement and he says that several negroes were killed but were buried perhaps before anyone went to the scene. The officers have returned from Enuffula where they went with the 10 negro prisoners to place them in jail awaiting an investigation. They will be given preliminary hearings probably tomorrow. County Attorney Rembert will prosecute the negroes.

Governor Haskell announced over the long distance telephone tonight that he had received no call for assistance from the citizens of Henryetta, Oklahoma county, but stated that he awaited anxiously all details concerning the trouble between the whites and the negroes near Hickory ground.

WILL PROSECUTE FORTY-ONE.

County Attorney of McIntosh County Will Investigate Battle Between Officers and Negroes.

Enuffula, Okla., March 26.—County Prosecutor Rembert, of McIntosh county, left here Friday afternoon for Hickory ground, the scene of the all-night battle between a posse of white officers and farmers and 500 Creek negroes and Indians Wednesday night, in which a number of negroes were killed, one white man seriously wounded and several blacks shot. The attorney will investigate the origin of the trouble which had its climax in the fight. The prosecution probably will be made on the ground of resistance to an officer.

The preliminaries of the forty-one prisoners will be held on Attorney Rembert's return Saturday.

The prisoners started from Henryetta late Thursday afternoon, arrived here at 3 o'clock in charge of a small bunch of deputy sheriffs. They were taken directly to the county jail. There was no excitement.

Among the prisoners is one white man, a preacher. He is accused by the possmen of having taken sides with the negroes. He refuses to talk. Thirty-five of the prisoners are Creek negroes and five are Creek Indians.

None of the prisoners are seriously wounded. A few bear scratches. They are without exception apparently thoroughly cowed.

Mrs. Shanafelt, Misses McGee, Cullins and Ingram and Mitchell Katz went to Stonewall this morning where they will give a recital this evening.

W. C. T. U. MAKES MOVE FOR WATER FOUNTAIN

LADIES UNDERTAKE MOST LAUDIBLE ENTERPRISE AND SHOULD BE ASSISTED.

Make Proposition to City Council for Assistance—Committee Appointed to Consider Proposition.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have on foot a movement to establish on Main street, or at some convenient place in the city, a water fountain so arranged as to be sufficient for all general purposes, such as drinking, watering stock, etc. This is a matter of more importance than appears on first thought, and whatever methods the ladies adopt to secure the necessary funds for this purpose should be patronized by every citizen who has pride in making the city beautiful and attractive.

The estimated cost of the project will be about $200.00, and the ladies have asked the city council to assist them to the extent of raising half the amount. A committee of the council has been appointed to confer with the ladies regarding the matter, but whether the council can see its way clear to comply with their requests or not is not yet known. Whatever may be the circumstances, however, let everybody encourage the project and devise means whereby the object may be accomplished.

FRIDAY NOT GOOD DAY.

If Remaining Bills Become Law They Must Be Signed by Midnight Tonight.

Guthrie, Ok., March 26.—Friday is not a propitious day in the eyes of Gov. Haskell when it comes to approving bills. There are between fifty and sixty remaining of the lot left by the legislature that will have to be signed by midnight tomorrow if they become laws, Saturday being the last day allowed for executive consideration of legislative acts. When asked late in the day if the work would be taken up the governor said: "No, this is Friday."

Among the remaining measures are a number creating new institutions, the general election law and a large number of appropriations, including the general appropriation measure. The only bill approved today was that by Mr. Maxey of Shawnee for bonding school districts. Representative Durant was here looking after it, for the reason the town of Durant has purchased the Presbyterian College building there for high school purposes and will float $20,000 of bonds in payment.

KATY AGENT AT DURANT.

Merchants Use Labels Showing That Goods Must Be Shipped Over Katy.

Durant, Okla., March 26.—Traveling Freight Agent Johnson of the M. K. & T. Railroad has been in Durant for the past two days working in the interests of his company in an effort to offset the Kansas City dealers' boycott.

Following a former visit of Johnson several of the Durant merchants, who had placed orders with Kansas City houses wired instructions that the shipments must be sent via the Katy. Gummed labels bearing the instructions. This shipment must be shipped via the M. K. & T. railroad, and if routed otherwise will be rejected" have been furnished the local dealers and will be attached to all orders sent to Kansas City houses until the boycott is declared off.

Must Buy Railroad Tickets.

Guthrie, Mar. 26.—Under an order issued by the state corporation commission yesterday railroad companies are authorized to charge excess fares from passengers who neglect to purchase tickets. The excess charges range from ten cents for all fares under fifty cents to fifty cents on all over a dollar and fifty cents.

Notice Ladies.

There will be a called meeting at the 25,000 Club rooms at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, of the XXth Century, Sorosis and City Federation and all the women in Ada who will assist in making the banquet a week from tonight a success.

AN ESCAPE VIA THE GRAVE

By GEORGE T. PARDY

Did Justice Go Wrong in the Case of Luke Phipps?

Tale of a Long Search, the Disappearance of a Criminal and the Hanging of Man by Essex County Authorities—An Achievement of That Master Sleuth, John Wilson Murray.

PELL HEAD FOREMOST INTO A NEWLY DUG GRAVE.

IN March, 1884, a man by the name of Luke Phipps was the proprietor of a billiard room in Detroit, Mich. Phipps was about 34 years of age, of fair complexion, with brown hair and a sandy mustache. His family consisted of his wife and two children, a boy and a girl. Mrs. Phipps was a pretty little woman, apparently very fond of her husband.

But fate decreed that the serpent of jealousy should creep into this Eden of domestic bliss. Mrs. Phipps, without the knowledge of her husband, had been in the habit of making secret trips across the river to Windsor, and it chanced that Luke Phipps received information of this fact. Passionately devoted to his wife, this discovery filled him with madness. He watched her carefully and shadowed her movements. One fateful night she left her home and boarded the ferry boat for Windsor. Close on her heels followed the infuriated husband, armed, and under the influence of strong liquor in which he had been indulging freely since he had been informed of his wife's supposed unfaithfulness.

Not until the boat was well out in the river and approaching the Canadian shore did Phipps reveal himself to the woman. Angry words passed between them, the husband accusing the wife of infidelity. Mrs. Phipps replied harshly and the words had scarcely left her lips when the man drew a revolver and fired point blank at her. The bullet sped true to the mark and Mrs. Phipps fell to the deck dead. The murder was witnessed by a score of passengers and Phipps was instantly seized. He made no resistance but meekly gave up the weapon with which the deed was committed, and when the boat landed at Windsor was taken in charge by the Canadian authorities. He was taken at once to Sandwich jail, three miles from Windsor, and committed for trial.

Into this ill-omened place of confinement came Phipps sobered by the realization of the awful tragedy of which he had been the author. The future looked black indeed, for Canadian justice frowned grimly upon the destroyer of human life no matter what her or his provocation may have been, and the gloomy shadow of the gallows loomed threateningly before him. Among the inmates of Sandwich jail was one "Bucky" Greenfield, a professional thief, who like Phipps was awaiting trial, but on a far less serious charge. To this man Phipps was assigned as cell-mate, and glad to find someone in whom he could confide, the wife-slayer told him the story.

As a result of this conference a mysterious female shortly afterwards paid a visit to Greenfield and for ten days following her call Bucky kept close in his cell. During this interval Luke Phipps became seized with a mania for music. He whistled and sang continually in a loud voice for hours at a time. None of the warders offered any objection. Life in Sandwich jail was a monotonous existence at the best, and if a prisoner found comfort in the sound of his own voice they saw no particular reason for silencing him.

The truth of the matter was that Phipps had resorted to the performance of these nocturnal concerts for the purpose of stifling the sounds of Greenfield's labors in the cell.

At last the persistent gnawing of the steel bars, the stubborn resistance of the steel bars. They were cut through and the way of escape lay open before the prisoners. In the dead of night the two men slipped out into the darkness. Greenfield got through the narrow opening with little difficulty, but Phipps when half way through stuck fast. His comrade tarried for a few moments making desperate efforts to extricate him, but Phipps remained immovable, as though gripped in a vice. Self preservation being the first law of nature, Bucky Greenfield resolved to obey its dictates, and seized with sudden panic fled swiftly into the night.

Despair seized the heart of Phipps in his icy clutch when his comrade deserted him. A few seconds passed, and he still lay in the narrow opening, gasping from his exertions. Then a wild fury filled his veins. He struggled savagely, desperately, and finally tore himself loose with a wrench so powerful that the momentum hurled him over the wall, and he fell heavily to the ground below. There he lay for some time, severely bruised and only half conscious. He was aroused by hearing voices in the jail, and staggering to his feet dragged himself away in search of a hiding place.

He came to a graveyard, and as he crawled along in the darkness, fell head foremost into a newly dug grave. Silent he lay without moving, with fast-closed eyes and rigid body. He heard a creaking and bumping and faintly, as though far away, he heard the harsh rattle of earth falling on the casket. Yet no weight seemed to press upon him, but this did not surprise him, for he was long past the stage of astonishment. It was the end, and nothing mattered now. He heard the rumble of wheels as the carriages departed and the footsteps of the mourners died away.

His awakening came suddenly, accompanied by a cold thrill of horror, as his eyes opened upon the utter darkness. He tried to move, but his entire frame seemed to be paralyzed. With a rush of recollection there crossed his mind the memory of the burial, the prayer and singing. He moved his head feebly and through the hay caught sight of the twinkling stars. Slowly and with great pain he managed to rise to a sitting posture. Where was the coffin, where the six feet of earth underneath which it lay? He staggered to his feet and saw that the grave he occupied was empty. His brain whirled madly in a maze of torturing conjectures. What did it all mean? He tried to clamber out, but fell back exhausted. He lay back on the hay, rested and tried again. It was the work of an hour for him to drag his feeble limbs over the edge of the pit, but at last he succeeded. Then the mystery was solved. Close beside the open grave from which he had emerged a new-made mound stood darkly in the moonlight. The burial had indeed taken place, but in the grave adjoining that in which he lay.

The escaped murderer stood up and laughed hysterically as he looked around and saw the distant outlines of Sandwich jail looming black and gigantic in the moonlight. Rallying his failing strength he staggered away from the grave that had been his place of refuge. On the new-made mound stood a vase of flowers, and bending down weakly, he plucked one and tossed it into the empty grave.

Then painfully he turned and crept

out of the cemetery, across the road, through the fields, traveling like an injured dog, limping on all fours.

His progress was very slow. His destination was the river, which he reached an hour after midnight, and where he found an old boat, half full of water. He discovered a piece of board, crawled into the boat, shoved off and began to paddle. When dawn was breaking he reached the American shore, below Detroit, nine miles down stream, wet to the skin, wounded, blood-stained and faint. But he knew the country round about and made his way into the city to the home of a friend, knocked and was taken in, clothed and fed. When his wounds were healed and his strength returned, he left Detroit resolved to enter upon a new life.

But the Canadian authorities were not disposed to tamely relinquish the possession of a prisoner who had broken their laws and set them at defiance. Orders were issued to capture Phipps, wherever he might be, and the task of hunting him down was assigned to Detective John Wilson Murray.

He sent out a description of Phipps to police headquarters all over the continent. The fugitive was a billiard-room keeper and Murray calculated that it would be simply a question of time until his money gave out and he would be obliged to look for a job in a billiard room. Every man to his trade is a maxim that also holds good in the case of a fugitive from justice, and the detective's surmise proved correct. Phipps was located in Pullman, Ill., where he had obtained a position in a billiard room. Murray prepared extradition papers, went to Illinois and took Phipps from Pullman to Chicago.

In the latter city the fugitive employed Jesse Ball, an able lawyer, and made a hard fight against extradition. His counsel endeavored to show that the shooting was done in American waters, and there is no hanging in Michigan. If the crime had been committed in American waters, Phipps would have been tried in Michigan, and if convicted, he would not have been hanged. Murray proved by the captain of the boat and a number of its passengers that the shooting was done in Canada waters, on the Canada side of the river. The legal fight lasted a couple of days, both sides calling witnesses, and Phipps lost. An appeal was taken and a writ of habeas corpus issued, but the proceeding was dismissed and Murray and his prisoner started for Canada.

At Ann Arbor two newspaper men, after going through the car, stopped in front of Phipps and asked him in a whisper as they pointed towards a well-known Detroit minister, who was slumbering in a nearby seat, "Is that Phipps, the murderer?"

Phipps merely smiled in reply, but it was evident that the title of murderer used in conjunction with his name made him flinch considerably, and Murray was about to explain the situation to the reporters when the train started and the two seekers for information left the car hurriedly. The news of Phipps' coming had gone before him and when the train reached Detroit there were nearly two hundred of his former friends waiting at the station to see him. The reception they gave the prisoner testified strongly to the high tide of popularity in his home town and Murray felt still more favorably inclined toward the man whom duty compelled him to hand over to the grim mercies of Canadian law.

"I'll see you fellows at the Michigan exchange," called out Phipps to his friends as he followed Murray into a cab that Chief Bains of Windsor had waiting for them. "I'd like to take a farewell drink there," added the prisoner to Murray, and the latter nodded assent and ordered the cabman to drive to the barroom in question. Phipps' friends gathered there in full force and crowded around him, shaking hands and giving vent to loud expressions of sympathy. Finally Murray delivered himself of a short speech to the crowd that was trenchant and very much to the point.

"It's all very well to be sorry, boys," said the detective bluntly, "but Phipps needs something more than that. What he wants is money for his defense and I'm ready to start a collection right now." Murray backed up his statement by making a handsome donation and the crowd, growing enthusiastic over the idea, followed suit, with the result that a comfortably large sum was soon subscribed and given to the prisoner. That done Murray asked him if there was any other place in Detroit he wanted to visit before crossing the river.

"I'd like to drive past my old home on Jefferson street," said the prisoner, wistfully.

Many times in after life the detective was glad that he acceded to this last request of his unfortunate prisoner. The cab drove along Jefferson street and Phipps gazed with soul-hungry eyes upon the house wherein he had once lived so happily. He watched it out of the cab window and then from the window in the back until it had faded from his view.

"I'm ready to go now," he said, and Murray took him across the river and back to the jail from which he had made such a daring escape.

There were several circumstances that weighed heavily against Phipps' chances of escaping death on the gallows. In the first place his jail-breaking exploit in company with Bucky Greenfield was against him. Greenfield got away safely to Mexico, and as there was no extradition treaty between Canada and the former country at that time covering his offense, he was never brought back. Doubtless Greenfield meant well by his cell-mate when he planned their escape, but it would have been far better for Phipps had he not broken jail. Then there was the episode of Billy Callaghan in Sandwich jail which had much to do with influencing public opinion in the County of Essex at the time of the Phipps trial.

Callaghan belonged to Detroit. He came of a respectable family, and in his younger days was a dry goods clerk, but became a professional burglar and desperate crook. He and a burglar named Kennedy were being held in Sandwich jail and on March 16 they made a dash for liberty. George O'Callaghan Leech, the old governor of the jail, tried to intercept the escaping prisoners, and Billy Callaghan drew a revolver which had been smuggled into his cell, shot and killed the governor and escaped with Kennedy. Callaghan got safely away out of the country but Kennedy was caught and sent to Kingston penitentiary for seven years.

While there Kennedy became pals with another convict named Blinky Morgan who was serving five years for manslaughter. Shortly after becoming acquainted the pair broke out of Kingston penitentiary. Morgan was traced to Reno, Ohio, by a detective named Hoolihan and in the fight that occurred when they met the officer was killed. Morgan escaped after slaying Hoolihan but was run down in Alpena, Mich., where he shot the sheriff and wounded another man. He was captured, taken to Cleveland and hanged. Kennedy got away.

In the meantime Callaghan, after killing Gov. Leech of Sandwich jail, had disappeared completely. Murray sent out circulars offering a reward for his arrest and finally received a telegram from the police of Hannibal, Mo., which read:

"Come at once. Callaghan in jail, acknowledges identity."

Murray wired back: "Will come, but I do not believe it is Callaghan. He would not acknowledge identity."

He prepared the necessary extradition papers and went to Hannibal, taking with him Turnkey Smith of Sandwich jail, who knew Callaghan well. Arriving at their destination they were informed by the police that two crooks, known as Joe Rice and John Carr, had burglarized Banker Patterson's house in Barry, Ill., making him get out of bed, open up his safe and turn over the contents, besides taking his gold-mounted revolver. They had been caught in Hannibal and Rice had the stolen revolver. On the way to the jail Rice whispered with Carr, and in the jail he had said to a fellow prisoner:

"I wonder if these cops know who I am? They offer a reward for me in Canada." The prisoner reported the conversation, Rice was questioned and confessed he was Bill Callaghan. Then Murray was sent for.

The detective was shown to the cell occupied by the supposed Callaghan. It was a gloomy hole, but even in the semi-darkness a single glance at the inmate convinced Murray that he was not the murderer of the Sandwich jail governor. Turnkey Smith also shared his opinion. The prisoner was ordered to step into a better light and Murray looked at him closely.

"No," said the detective, "he is not Callaghan. This is Jim Leavitt of New York. Jim, I have seen you at Billy Brown's in Bleeker street, and at 'The Allen's'."

The prisoner laughed, and admitted that Murray's statement was correct. Murray returned to Toronto without Callaghan whom he next heard of in Mexico. It was later reported that Callaghan was drowned in South America, but however that may have been, he was never captured.

Between Greenfield and Callaghan the fate of Luke Phipps was sealed. The murder of Gov. O'Callaghan Leech enraged the people of Essex county, and when Phipps, who had escaped from the same jail, came up for trial some months after the Leech killing, public opinion was against him. He was found guilty of murder, hanged in Sandwich jail in November, 1884, and buried near the grave where he had once sought refuge and lay hidden from the eyes of his hunters for the space of a night and a day.

During the time beginning with Thanksgiving day and ending with New Year's day, New York city handles one-twelfth of all the turkeys consumed in the United States.

England's Dog Law
Some misguided person returning from a continental holiday has wondered why dogs are not used in England as beasts of burden. The reason why is nothing less simple than a statute. As long ago as 1839 an act was passed making it a punishable offense for any person within the metropolitan area to "use any dog for the purpose of drawing or helping to draw any cart, carriage, truck or barrow." Fifteen years later, in 1854, an act, passed in "the more effectual prevention of cruelty to animals," extended the prohibition to all parts of the kingdom.—London Globe.

California's Trees Very Old
The great trees of California, it has been said, began life before the earliest dawn of Chinese history, and at the time of the deluge were older than the art of printing from type is today. Prof. Charles E. Bessey, however, contends that even 2,000 years is a great over-estimate, actual ring count of a tree 25 feet in diameter having indicated only 1,147 years.

When a fellow finds a button sewed on his shirt that has been missin' a month or two he wonders what in tar-nation his wife is goin' to strike him for in the hat or dress line.—Los Angeles Express.

Make 'Em Grow by Electricity
The electrification of plants is the new gardener's recipe for making things grow like Jack's beanstalk. In 1904 600 square yards of kitchen garden were electrified by the overhead discharge system, and, compared with controls, gooseberries yielded 17 per cent. increase; strawberries, 36.80 per cent. increase; tomatoes, none. In the other plot carrots yielded 50 per cent. increase and beets 30 per cent., with an increase of one per cent. sugar content under similar treatment. In 1906 20 acres of wheat were treated with discharge wires at a considerable height and high tension current; the increase over control was 39 per cent. The electrified wheat gave a better quality of flour.
